YOU ARE WELCOME!

ARCHITECTURE

The Moscow School of Management SKOLKOVO Campus is the embodiment of unique architectural ideas. The painting “Suprematism” by the great Russian artist Kazimir Malevich is the basis of the architectural project of the SKOLKOVO Campus.

When considering the ideas presented by a number of the world famous architectural companies Founding partners of the Moscow School of Management SKOLKOVO noted substandard vision and original concept by the British architect, David Adjaye, and chose his studio Adjaye/ Associates for further work on the design of Campus.

At the time of development of Campus project particular attention was paid to its functionality. You can enter any building on Campus without going outside: since you are inside, you no longer have to face rough weather. In fact, you will get into the indoor “city” with clusters and auditoriums, congress hall, cafes, “streets” and “squares” represented on the so-called Disc. Disc is the Campus base, it is possible to get in any building of the Moscow School of Management SKOLKOVO city.

In addition, the building allows us a fresh approach to the surrounding landscape. It is like a bridge between nature and the urban space. Many elements of Campus have much in common, repeating each other’s shape, as if talking to each other. This is due to the philosophy of the Moscow School of Management SKOLKOVO: interaction and communication of people, harmony and balance of mind and business.

“CITY-IN-THE-CITY” CONCEPT IN ACTION!

Campus of the Moscow School of Management SKOLKOVO includes a number of buildings integrated in a single complex. The Campus base, or the Disc, is a round platform representing four buildings located on its roof: administrative building (KARAKORUM), hotels: TIAN SHAN and PAMIR, sports centre (HIMALAYAS).

Architectural design of the Campus implements the “city-in-the-city” concept: multiple buildings are united within one complex, each of them can be reached without going outside.

The Disc is divided into seven clusters, six of which include auditoriums, meeting rooms and a spacious recreation area. Clusters were named after BRICS countries: Brazil, Russia, India, China, Africa as well as Singapore and Europe.

Individual colour scheme of each cluster makes navigation in the Disc area especially convenient and visual. Vast open spaces full of light energize every visitor with airiness and freedom.

The living green wall

The living wall at the Moscow School of Management SKOLKOVO is a special project of the Terrakultur company. In strict compliance with the patented vertical planting technology the plants are placed in separate cells and their nutrition is supplied by a special irrigation system. The amazing vertical green carpet created with a variety of ornamental plants creates unique favourable microclimate and delight for the eyes of Campus' visitors.

The Moscow School of Management SKOLKOVO is proud of its living wall – the biggest in Eastern Europe.

Fountain

Congress Hall Lounge has a unique fountain. A special technology allows you to create an image and move it with the light on the falling drops of water. Automated process control fountain nozzles precisely adjust every stream of water and form a clear two-dimensional image of any shape or text in the water flow. High precision control makes it possible to create images from individual water streams. Names and logos of the companies participating in the event as well as greetings are displayed in the flowing water.

A company's logo appearing on crystal streams of falling water will become an integral part of branding during the event and will certainly be remembered by partners, guests and all the participants of the event. There are only sixty hi-tech graphic devices like this in the world.

Auditoriums
